The cyclooxygenase-2 inhibitor NS-398 ameliorates acute cholestatic liver injury in the rat. To determine whether cyclooxygenase-2 (COX-2) inhibitors can prevent or ameliorate liver injury in the rat, the effect of the selective inhibitor NS-398 (10 mg/kg i.v. x 3 hr; 100 mg/kg i.p. x 24 hr) on the serum levels of transaminases and total bilirubin was assessed after the administration of a 10% casein diet or two necrogenic agents, dimethylnitrosamine (DMN, 0.5% in drinking water for 2 weeks) or phenobarbital (PB, 200 mg/kg i.p. x 3). NS-398 decreased the transaminase levels in both necrogenic models, and the DMN-induced increase in bilirubin levels was also inhibited by the drug. An antisecretory effect was observed in the necrogenic models. The results indicate that COX-2 plays a dual role in necrogenic liver injury; it causes the loss of cellular constituents and release of proinflammatory mediators, and it inhibits the production of compounds contributing to the defense against cell injury. Blood cancer stem cells: a promising target for developing novel therapies. Cancer stem cells (CSCs) are a small sub-population of cancer cells that share the ability to initiate tumor growth and to serve as the source of tumour recurrence. Recently, a new subpopulation of CSCs that were able to initiate tumors in immunocompetent mice was identified. 77a5ca646e

In recent years, there is proposed a nonvolatile semiconductor memory (hereinafter, NAND-type flash memory) having a NAND cell configuration in which a plurality of memory cells are connected in series. The NAND-type flash memory has been paid attention as a nonvolatile memory capable of realizing high-integration. The NAND-type flash memory has advantages of high integration, low power consumption and an easy implementation of multi-bit storage in comparison with a NOR-type flash memory or the like, and accordingly, has been paid attention as a storage device for, for example, mobile devices or the like.Q: asp.net TreeView I have a treeview in an asp.net web application. I bind the treeview to an object with 30 properties. I am trying to filter the data through checkboxes that are assigned to each property. I had to add extra fields on the database for each property, and set them as hidden so they would not display on the page and get in the way. This has worked fine.
