treeMapsFs is a free file/folder management application for Windows that makes it easy to visualize the content of your hard disk drive. Elegant, User Friendly and Easy to Use As mentioned above, treeMapsFs is a free file/folder management application for Windows that lets you easily visualize the content of your hard disk drive. From the main window, you are able to select between several different view types. Clicking on either of the other view types, such as the treemap, folder or file statistics, will allow you to get an in-depth view over your hard disk drive. TreeMapsFs automatically scans your hard disk drive so that you can get this information as soon as you run the program. Organized in tabs, you can then easily navigate through the different view types and see what is exactly taking up space on your hard disk drive. Moreover, you can manage files you find during the process and optionally delete duplicate entries. This is a nice feature especially if you are having troubles finding a file on your hard disk drive. Overall, treeMapsFs makes it easy to get an in-depth view over what is taking up space on your hard disk drive. The interface is easy to use and multiple view types ensure information is delivered successfully. À propos Folder Properties GUI Folder Properties is a small, easy to use tool for Windows to easily view and update properties for your folder. The GUI is very easy to use and will even let you change multiple folders at the same time. You can easily select properties like date of last modification, file size, creation date, etc. You can also delete or create shortcuts to your folder. Folder Properties even makes it easy to remove or rename your folder. All changes are instantly saved for next use. In addition, Folder Properties can easily change the window or icon of your folder. The file renaming tool helps you by simply selecting a file or folder that you wish to rename. You are then presented with a dialog box where you can select the desired new name for your file or folder. All changes are instantly saved for next use. This file and folder extractor allows you to extract all file types from a ZIP file. All file types are extracted into a new folder, and you are able to select where they should be extracted to. The GUI comes with a couple of features to easily extract all files and folders from a ZIP file. You can also change the compression method to use

TreeMapsFs is a powerful software solution for visualizing the file system structure of a computer and for finding duplicate files on the hard drive. Its main function is to visualize the file system structure of a computer and present the files and folders in a tree view. The tree is split by directories, where each directory has a name and a file or folder count in parenthesis. The number of files or folders under a directory is shown in front of its name. You can move the nodes in the tree view, edit a file or folder name and delete the files and folders on your hard drive. You can also compare directory content. The tree view is split in two views. On the left side, all files and folders are listed in a tree view. It is possible to compare two directories in order to see how they differ. In the right side of the window, all files and folders are listed, but with a selected directory. The duplicate files feature allows you to compare two directory structures. Duplicates are identified and removed so that your computer runs more efficiently. It is also possible to sort the found duplicates by file size, file name or modified date. Once a duplicate is found and removed, a notification is created so you don't need to check the folder manually. What is new in this release: New Duplicates function – Automatically removes duplicates when you save a directory. What is new in this version 1.4: New Duplicates function – Automatically removes duplicates when you save a directory. Bug fixes. Pricing and Availability TreeMapFs is available as freeware for both Windows and Mac OS X.Promo Menu The Archbishop of York says people with mental health problems should be treated as people first. In this week's Thought for the Day, Archbishop Sentamu notes how his church has moved away from treating mental health problems as a life issue which is to be seen in the light of a spiritual problem. Instead, he says, the church now focuses on the person with mental health problems. "I wish people would focus on the person with mental health problems as someone first, a person with a mental health problem," he said. He adds: "Mental health problems should not be seen as an illness or a condition to be sorted out. It is not an illness that can be swept under the carpet as it is not a disease. "Mental health problems should be dealt with by the community with the individual. A health problem needs a health solution, but a mental health problem needs a mental solution."_PIXEL_INT16_ARGB 0,
