Unblock Facebook is a desktop client for the popular social network that makes use of proxy addresses in order to provide unlimited access to your account. It is especially fit for scenarios where Facebook is not supported in your area or when there are various limitations imposed for your IP address. The idea behind the product is to randomly select a proxy address through which the traffic will be routed anonymously. This is done with the aid of the TOR network, which assigns a virtual IP each time you run the application, allowing you to access Facebook without requiring special efforts. Unblock Facebook comes in the form of a simplistic browser whose main purpose is to navigate Facebook exclusively, therefore you won't be able to use with other websites. Insofar as the feature set is concerned, this proxy enabled explorer features buttons for basic functions such as Back and Forward, Home and Refresh. Due to the fact that proxy addresses are selected randomly, some of them might result in slower browsing speeds than others. If, at any point, the overall experience becomes heavy on account of an ineffective proxy address, you will have to restart the browser in order to route the traffic through a new gate. The impression that Unblock Facebook makes is that of a simple, yet efficient navigator that can bypass all restrictions related to Facebook. However, the need of a button for refreshing the proxy automatically, without exiting the browser, should be regarded as a priority in future releases. Now, in case you do not know what a VPN is, the full description is as follows: A Virtual Private Network, or VPN, is basically a service that enables you to encrypt all of your network traffic, making it unaccessible to everyone who is not a part of the network. Although the concept sounds cool, it is simple, you simply have to select the countries and regions you wish to be available for, download the free application, connect the VPN, and voila! You can now have online access to whatever you want. Now, in case you are ready to look for a VPN service, you might not know how to make the selection of your needs. Well, there is nothing to worry about, I will take you through the whole process, step by step. Firstly, you will need to select the country and region you are currently located. We will be selecting the US as the example, so head over to the USA section, which is located in the list to the left. Now, you will need to click the country and region you wish to be
