The Gradient tool allows you to create very realistic, semi-transparent gradients by using a range of pre-set color combinations. Gradients can be used for a variety of effects, including creating simple color effects in an image or replacing the background. Here are some examples. The Eraser tools allow you to erase pixels, making adjustments to the pixels that you have erased. You can use this tool to make adjustments to things like shadows and highlights and to remove unwanted objects from a picture. You can also use it to fix minor scratches and dust and to add highlights, shadows, and gradient effects. The Paths tools allow you to manually create or adjust paths or shapes in an image. These paths can then be used to create effects in other parts of the image. For example, you can duplicate and move a path in an image to create a mirrored effect. You can also use paths to cut and paste images into each other or to add complex masking effects. The Pen tool allows you to draw with a variety of different tools or with a brush. You can use the Pen tool to create effects like strokes, text, or calligraphers, or to paint in and around objects in an image. You can use it to draw simple lines, create complex lines that are semi-transparent, or combine the Pen and Brush tools to create brush-like effects. The Magic Wand tool is a powerful selection tool that allows you to select and select all the areas of an image that have the same color as the color of the tool. You can then easily clean up the selection by merging it with other selections or moving it around. The Gradient tool allows you to create gradients, which are a series of colors that gradually transition from one color to another. The Gradient tool allows you to quickly select colors and create or edit them. You can use gradients to add simple effects, such as changing the background color or making images brighter. You can also create more complex gradients that have a gradual transition from one color to another. The Content-Aware Fill tool allows you to fill in an image with colors from the surrounding area. You can then use the content-aware fill tools to select the areas in the image that have been filled and use them to create something new in the image. The Shadows, Highlights, and Blur tools allow you to soften or harden shadows, highlights, and textures on an image. Shadows and highlights can make an image look grun

Q: Setting one dimension to zero while filling a 2D array I have a 2D array, an array of pointers to 2D arrays. Each cell in each 2D array represents an 8x8 tile. I use this to represent an image, but if I need to set a few of the 8x8 tiles to zero, I want to reuse them for a different image. I've figured out how to set the whole array to zero, but I'd like to find out if there's a more efficient way of doing this than looping over every tile and setting the entire array to zero. A: Use memset. Also, if you want to use two D arrays interchangeably, use pointers and memcpy. You can also use this to copy one array to another.

Piercy, Baltimore Piercy is a Baltimore, Maryland neighborhood in the northern parts of the city's Canton and Station North areas. It is bordered by Pennsylvania Avenue to the north, Douglass Avenue to the east, Patterson Park to the south, and the Patapsco River to the west. Piercy is a heavily industrial neighborhood with large brick mills and manufacturing plants. It was once the site of the Cascades Mill, an industrial complex that was later annexed by Baltimore City. In later years, the neighborhood became the site of a General Motors automobile manufacturing plant (Piercy Assembly) and the Baltimore Aviation Terminal. The neighborhood's post office is called Piercy. Piercy was a thriving community until it was hit hard by the construction of I-83, the Patapsco Expressway. This project took away many of the industry jobs in the area and many old buildings were torn down. The community gained some notoriety in 1998 after the slaying of a 4-year-old girl by a 17-year-old. However, this neighborhood has been experiencing a resurgence of residents and businesses in the last few years. References
