First Update of the Weekend:

The nominations for the 12th annual Screen Actors Guild Awards recognize the best performances by film and television performers for 2018. The nominees are chosen by SAG members who are eligible to vote in all non-television awards categories. Inclusion of non-television films has never been an issue among SAG voters because it is the 12th guild that screens all the films, from limited releases to limited festival screens, that are eligible to be nominated in their individual guilds, plus the SAG Awards. There are five SAG-nominated films opening in theaters and an additional nine films that received awards from other guilds — but the nominations from the SAG Awards will be the films' only recognition by a major studio. These include the biographical film “The Favourite” (Fox Searchlight) which won the Golden Globe as Best Film - Drama and has four SAG nominations, including nominations for Best Ensemble and Best Supporting Actor for Brian d'Arcy James. “If the Motion Picture Academy has taught me anything, it's that all of the studio system does is cream the top 10%. I've done 14 years of this, this will be the 15th. And if there's no understanding of the movie exhibitor at all, how in the world do you become a millionaire?” Turturro said on Twitter following the announcement, referencing Disney's $1.52-billion acquisition of Fox next year.

orthopaedic trauma patients: implications for clinical outcomes.
disparities between socioeconomic status (SES) and access to health care is a major problem in the United States. The current study examines the hypothesis that disparities in socio-economic and insurance status exist among patients with orthopaedic trauma injuries and that disparities exist among patients with similar types of injuries.
Additionally, we hypothesize that disparities exist among injuries typed according to their corresponding procedures. The National Health and Medical Care Survey (NHS) data were obtained from the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) for the years 2000, 2005, and 2010, and were used to identify orthopaedic trauma patients with public insurance and Medicare coverage. The population of orthopaedic trauma patients was randomly selected using Stata's Survey Dataset (univariate) and multivariate commands, and was analyzed using the Stata "Analyze" age, with multiple regression, logistic regression, and chi-square analysis performed. Comparison of the three survey years from 2010 als a reduction in social-economic class disparities among orthopaedic trauma patients with public insurance. No significant differences were observed for managed care patients. Orthopaedic trauma patients with Medicare insurance have decreased disparities with e. The experience of Medicare insurance can exceed that of public insurance. SES disparities among orthopaedic trauma patients decrease time. SES disparities among Medicare patients exceed public insurance patients, and are likely to increase with time. The relationship between type of injury (i.e. fracture, dislocation, ligamentous injury) and is significant and suggests that the surgical treatment of patients these two injuries may not mitigate disparities in SES.
