This article is available in the following languages: More news stories Twenty-two players is a pretty big number for FIFA's cover athlete to be, but you wouldn't know it from seeing Fernando Santos' smiling, dimpled face. It's not he's famous for, but it's the 24th player named after him that was the star of Santos' first World Cup. The pair's figureheads don't look very alike: Fernando is dark-skinned and dark-haired, while Eden features light skin and hazel eyes. But their faces share a similar blend of glowing confidence—it's not that they look alike, but they look like themselves. That's part of the draw for one: "Pelé and Pele should look like them," Wenger said to the assembled media on Thursday after the news was confirmed, "and maybe Messi and Ronaldo, too." Santiago Almeida/Associated Press The recognition of the center as the best in the world has been awarded to a man who has lived through the last 120 years. Sir Robert Peel was an MP for Liverpool in the 1920s and a Liberal Home Secretary in the 1930s. His decades-long track record as the lead prosecutor in British football's most celebrated trials saw him appointed the top man for the English FA in 1896 and the man tasked with restoring the sport to the center of UK society. It's no exaggeration to say that Peel would rank as one of the most influential figures in English football's modern history. His only real rival as a historical figure is Charles Reith, the BBC's director-general who held that job between the two world wars, who also had a hand in setting up the Football Association's FA Cup. By the time he retired in 1941, Reith had been responsible for turning the FA into the sport's biggest and most influential institution—a position he held longer than any other person before or since. Sir Robert Peel was a young activist when he joined the movement in the early 1890s, responding to a swell of admiration for his fellow Evertonians and what was considered to be unjust football tactics. In one famous speech, Peel found himself at the heart of a mass anti-Cup final rabble-rouser: The Everton Football Club is now involved in one of the football matches of the century. On Saturday, April 6, 1900, a team representing Manchester played a team representing Everton at the Oval, and a torrent of water was

FIFA is the worldwide leader in interactive football, and is an official partner of FIFA 20 and its esports promotion. Powered by Football provides more opportunities than ever for fans to become a part of the action in FIFA games. Based on the latest global game data from EA SPORTS FIFA servers, players will see player and team stats, player positioning on the pitch, radar, form and upcoming teams that can make a difference in their specific competitions. As a proud sponsor of FIFA, FIFA mobile, FIFA Ultimate Team and FIFA One, EA SPORTS FIFA titles will consistently deliver the most authentic football experience available. EA SPORTS FIFA 22 NEWS: HERE Total Attacking Potential FIFA 22 – a showcase of football's most cutting-edge data and experience AI reaction to an attack that will determine the flow of a football match, as well as opportunities for defenders and midfielders. Updated playmakers, the devil and the weak links that will allow you to complete a counterattack when it matters most. Plus a first look at the brand-new player review system. Staying Ahead of the Game in Total Attack – a deeper dive into all levels of the game The new Total Attacking Potential system uses unique data to find an equivalent to ‘football mastery’ that will determine the flow of a football match, as well as opportunities for defenders and midfielders. The ‘AI level’ is a new setting for gameplay that will determine how prepared the opponent is. The ‘Self-Aware AI Level’ calculates how well the opponent will play against you and adjusts accordingly. The ‘AI Depth’ will determine the ability of the opponent's defenders to make challenges and will affect passing options based on the defenders' positioning. AI Reflexes – a refreshing and calculated approach to game intelligence AI Reflexes is a new setting in the strategy layer, which represents how smart the opponent is based on its previous performance. The setting will determine if the opponent is a player at the peak of their game or is dropping off, allowing you to adapt your strategies, tactics and lineups to beat them. The AI Reflexes system creates unique choices that will affect gameplay in three key areas: Attacking – the AI of the opponents will react differently depending on their Reflexes setting. Defending – the AI of the opponents will adapt their behaviour based on their Reflexes setting. Interaction – the level of interaction with the opponent will be affected by their bc9d6d6daa

One of Tesla’s main goals is to produce as many vehicles as possible every year to boost its installed base from the current 50,000 vehicles. Tesla’s PE ratio of 5.7 is way below other automakers but the company is planning to expand its manufacturing capacity and reduce the price of the vehicles to make it more affordable. The company’s capital expenditure is expected to jump 27 percent from this year to $3.65 billion next year with a huge investment into the Gigafactory 3 to increase production and lowering the price per vehicle. Here’s what Tesla announced about its capital expenditure: Model 3 production is ahead of schedule. Tesla’s first all-electric sedan Model 3 is ramping up production. The company produced 3,265 Model 3 vehicles in December, marking a significant milestone after having produced only 275 Model 3 vehicles during the third quarter. Production of Tesla🔒

What's new in Fifa 22:

- HyperMotion Technology (FUT)- FIFA 22 harnesses 22 of the world's leading pro players' biometric data with advanced motion-capture sensors to bring HyperMotion Technology to FIFA. In a series of on-field tests conducted in a FIFA training centre in Turin, Italy with FIFA-22 Winger Alessandro Diamanti, two lightweight electronic motion capture suits were used to collect the biomechanical data from 22 players across different positions while they were wearing actual team kit during a full-on high-intensity match played with real team tactics, skill, and reaction time.
- New Attacking Revolution - Attack has been reinvented in FIFA 22. Forget long passes, dribbling is the name of the game, and defenders will need to adapt to the pace and speed of the new attack style. Explosive new attacks, new passes, and reactive defenders who push further forward ensure that there is never a dull moment in FIFA 22.
- Re-invented Online - FIFA's most loved attributes return in a wildly revamped version of the FIFA Ultimate Team features, including all-new Gameweek formations, customisation tools, and more.
- New Features - The New Pitch Creator lets you design the pitch you dream of, while new Venues and Player Movements bring a level of authenticity and experience to FIFA 22.
- Dynamic Interaction Scoring - Watch your players run, tackle, catch and shoot all with a new level of authenticity and interaction. New attributes such as Cup Goals, Lying Kits, and Attacking Boost provide new ways to score goals. As opponents get closer to you, they tighten their defence and react more aggressively to your attempts to open them up, creating a more tactical player experience. Watch the video below for some of the new features in FIFA 22.
- The Atmosphere is Amped Up - With a new live soundtrack and Live Stream in-match, the atmosphere is elevated throughout the match.
