The premise was that there would be men and women mixed into the same event and each would fight for a six-month period. The premise was inspired by the popular fight series The Ultimate Fighter. It was to be the first of two large-scale sporting events in Canada during 2009. The second was presented by CHCH and TVB in Vancouver, British Columbia on May 12, 2009 that was billed as a mixed martial arts event, although it was more like a wrestling/boxing event, and did not include any actual fighting, but was much more popular. The event organizer, September Fight Events owner and promoter, Robb Dix held the position of promotion manager. On November 16, 2008, they submitted a proposal to host the first Canadian mixed martial arts event to the National Capital Commission (NCC), the Canadian federal government's principle for the development of the national capital. On December 2, 2008, the NCC awarded September Fight Events the contract. However the NCC never confirmed that the event would be held in Canada. In early January 2009, September Fight Events received serious inquiries from a number of promoters and sporting event organizers about a Fight for Gold II in Canada. On January 8, 2009, the Fight for Gold and Fight for Gold Canada organizations were founded. They conducted an early planning meeting at the Ray's Pizza restaurant on Kerby Drive, Vancouver, British Columbia. The executives of Fight for Gold Canada included Steve Mather, Rob Dix (promoter) and Mike Perry (aftermath caretaker and MC), among others. LineageN
