The concept was introduced in 2012 and was released in 2014. History In 2012, Daihatsu introduced the Solar-Nano, a concept electric vehicle, designed for a fleet of urban electric vehicles. In September 2013, Daihatsu announced that they would start production of a Daihatsu Solar-Nano electric car, based on the concept model, and delivery would be made by 2015. In 2014, Daihatsu released the full production version, and produced it as a city car with room for four people. Specifications The Solar-Nano is designed to be charged using solar energy. The cover of the car consists of photovoltaic cells, and the interior features a conventional car battery to drive when the car is not connected to the solar panels. The car uses a 1.4 kWh lithium polymer battery, which is a significantly smaller battery than a conventional car battery. This allows the vehicle to be a more fuel-efficient car and reduces manufacturing cost. The manufacturing cost of the car is about US$16,000, making it the cheapest solar car to date. Production and delivery Daihatsu is planning to mass-produce 500 Solar-Nanos by 2016. In 2015, the Solar-Nano was shown at the Paris Motor Show. The first delivery of the Solar-Nano occurred in 2016, and deliveries were continued in 2017. In 2017, Daihatsu announced that they would raise the production to 10,000 Solar-Nanos per year in 2018. By the end of 2018, 20,000 vehicles had been produced, and the capacity has been increased by 30% per year since the first production year of 2015. In August 2018, Daihatsu announced that the production capacity for the Solar-Nano would reach 30,000 vehicles per year in tell Apache to rewrite an URL to a new location, but preserve any HTTP parameters passed I'm in the process of rewriting our whole domain to a new location. I'm currently in the middle of a rewrite and I'm having a bit of difficulty figuring out how to write the rewrite from Apache's config files. Here are the things I need to achieve: All URLs in the old domain need to be rewritten to the new location. So www.olddomain.com/file.zip needs to be rewritten to www.newdomain.com/index.php?dir=zip/file.zip I need to maintain the URL. So if someone were to try to access www.olddomain.com/file.zip now, the request would be directed to www.newdomain.com/index.php?dir=zip/file.zip&page=details I need to preserve the query string so the page would be directed to the correct page based on the query string. I've tried to set up a rewrite condition, but then I can't figure out how to modify the URL and preserve the query string. Something like this: RewriteEngine On RewriteCond %{REQUEST_URI}!/index.php RewriteCond %{QUERY_STRING} ^page=([0-9]+)$ RewriteRule ^index.php$ - [G]
