Q: Crystal Report to display a calculated field I am developing an application where i need to display a calculation on a textbox which is called "Total Amount" Here is what i have tried: Say, the Total Amount is 50 ReportDocument report = new ReportDocument(); TotalAmount = report.ComputeIfAbsent("TotalAmount", (TotalAmount) => TotalAmount = (double)TotalAmount * 100); I know it is wrong and will not compile, but is there any way to get the result? Thank you A: Caveat; When I have needed a calculated field I have been using subreports Dim rSubreport as New Subreport rSubreport.SubreportProcessing = SubreportProcessingEnum.NoSubreport rSubreport.SubreportExpression = "{MyExpression}" rMainReport.Subreports.Add(rSubreport) The advantage is that the Crystal Report SQL can be different from each subreport. The disadvantage is the overhead of creating the subreport. So the benefits of a calculated field depend on the logic you have to use the value. Let's look at how you can make your own custom brushes in Photoshop. Open an image Step 1 Choose any way to load the brush - brushes are smart enough to automatically adjust the size according to the image. Step 2 Choose Edit > Define Brush Preset. Step 3 You now have a white canvas. Enter any values for the tool sizes. Step 4 Now choose Edit > Stroke to get a handle. You will need to adjust the pressure to get the desired effect. Step 5 To save the brush, click File > Save. Name it, and enter it in the appropriate field of the Brush Preset settings area. Step 6 Use the brush tool to paint the design onto the canvas. This article was originally published in the Inspiration Magazine for October 2010 Create an Easy Script Effect Photoshop is an amazing tool, but more often than not, scripts are necessary for the effects and effects that you need to use. The basic and the easiest way to create a custom script effect is to use the Effect > Scripts > Scripts window. It is a simple way to add scripts in a few lines of code. What is a Script? A script is a piece of code that you can use in Photoshop to create effects and post-processing settings. For example, to add a watermark to an image, you could simply type a few lines of code in the Scripts window. The following figure demonstrates how to do this: The first argument is the name of the script, and the second argument is the setting. This article was originally published in the Inspiration Magazine for November 2010 Add Scripts to a Custom Layer Mask Select the layer mask that you want to modify. This could be for any pre-defined mask or you can create a new one. This article was originally published in the Inspiration Magazine for October 2010 Apply an Easy Warp Effect to an Image Warping is a common technique in Photoshop. The following figure demonstrates how to create a custom warp effect with the Warp tool. The first step is to create an image of your choice and load it in Photoshop. In this example, I am creating a small fish. Step 1 Load the image, and then choose the Warp tool. It is near the "Draw" tool. Step 2
