To use "notwithstanding" for a specific purpose, you can either qualify it as "notwithstanding the fact that", or write "notwithstanding", so that it functions as a gerund. The following are examples of how you might use "notwithstanding" in sentences: 1. Notwithstanding the fact that she is my mother, I will still love her for who she is. 2. Despite the fact that she doesn't have time to speak to you, please ask her if she has a minute. 3. When my wife is playing in the park, notwithstanding the fact
