Adenosine A2A receptors (A2A Rs) have a role in the modulation of neuronal responses and the spinal cord is a crucial and well-studied site for the regulation of locomotor function. Overexpression of A2A R subtypes during spinal cord injury (SCI) has been described, which suggests a potential role for these receptors in the pathophysiology of SCI. Furthermore, the use of A2A R antagonists reduces the secondary injury responses after spinal cord injury. This paper reviews the current evidence supporting a role for A2A R agonists and antagonists in the therapy of SCI and also highlights the potential usefulness of A2A R expression as a biomarker of SCI.MOSCOW (Reuters) - Russia's state-owned VTB24 bank expects total write-downs of around $10 billion on its commodities and agricultural debt portfolio by the end of 2014, as the sector is hit by low oil prices and market volatility. The bank, which has struggled to withstand the impact of low oil prices and a weak rouble, said on Tuesday it had booked write-downs of between $8 billion and $10 billion. Market participants have broadly expected VTB to claim a similar amount, but VTB said the reduction in its portfolio was "much lower" than it had previously estimated. VTB24 posted net losses of 130 billion roubles ($3.3 billion) for the first half of 2014, compared with a loss of 42 billion roubles a year earlier. The bank, also controlled by Russian state oil company Rosneft, is now looking to the new year to recover, with revenues forecast e79caf774b

Medical technology has the power to ensure adequate nutrition and hydration at home for many patients. Although the vast majority of medical practitioners and institutions realize this is the case, little has been documented in the literature concerning this new role. The purpose of this study was to explore the role of a nutritional consultant at home. A semistructured interview schedule was used to record the experiences of individuals living in a large Midwestern university teaching hospital. The research was approved by the Institutional Review Board. A total of 9 patients participated in the study. Their ages were from 22 to 85 years, and 4 were women and 5 were men. The mean age was 61.6 years. The average length of time since the patient had been a patient at the hospital was more than 8 years. Three categories were derived from the data: the importance of support from the family, the importance of the nutritional consultant, and the barriers to implementing the consultation. The results show that this group of patients did not feel that their health care providers understood their concerns and requirements regarding nutrition and hydration. They wanted to be better informed concerning nutrition. Based on this study, which is the first in the United States to investigate the role of a nutritional consultant at home, it appears that patients feel that a better understanding of their nutritional needs, as well as a support system, are important to their overall health and wellbeing.Get Social Former HEC, UMD officials are convicted in Nigerian fraud scam Former University of Maryland officials and three others were convicted on racketeering charges Wednesday in a sprawling Nigerian fraud case that threatened to expose how millions of dollars was pulled from the bank accounts of Americans.
