Q: How to separate sentences with comma when writing on paper I am trying to figure out how to arrange sentences properly, but am not sure how to do it on paper. I guess the concept is simple: Write a sentence, then Indent the next sentence, then Write another sentence, then Indent the next sentence. Is this correct? A: It looks like you are looking for a one column layout, with the first sentence on the left and the next sentence right. For the second sentence, you can either shift the first sentence over or write the next sentence in the first paragraph's column. The only other possibility is that your layout is for two or more columns and you are trying to make the layout seem one column by taking up extra space in the final column.

Q: Solving  $x^2 + x + \frac{1}{x} = 0$  Solve the equation  $x^2 + x + \frac{1}{x} = 0$ . This is what I did.  $x^2 + x + \frac{1}{x} = 0$   $x^2 + x + \frac{1}{x^2} = 0$   $\left(x + \frac{1}{x^2}\right)^2 = 0$   $x^2 + 2 + \frac{1}{x^2} = 0$
