We are living in a world where we are much connected to each other, which allows us to easily communicate and get to know more about each other's life, but at the same time we are losing something important in the process. Face-to-Face communication is almost limited to the people who live in the same town, and the rest are limited to social media platforms. Businesses nowadays are getting more effective in using social media platforms to interact with their audience, as they understand how important it is to connect with them. Facebook is the most prominent social media platform which has become very useful in the past few years. Thanks to the recent changes on Facebook, it is now possible to share multiple photos at once. The new option will allow Facebook users to take multiple photos at once and add them to the same post. Other than the photos, Facebook users can choose to add other media like audio, gifs, or even videos. This option is very exciting for users who are looking for new ways to share photos on Facebook. However, the addition of multiple photos is not the only change we are going to see in Facebook. The recent Facebook changes also include changes on the timeline. When users were accessing their timeline, they were getting a new display of posts. Now, the new timeline displays posts like they were receiving an email. A Facebook post looks like this in the new timeline: The new display is much more exciting than the previous one as it gives users the ability to view all the posts that they like at one place. It is also easier to navigate through the posts, because it's more user-friendly. Facebook has recently been under the spotlight for its changes on timeline and now they are doing the same with the photos that they are adding to the posts. Before now, Facebook users were used to the old timeline, where photos looked like old school photos. Now, photos on Facebook look like they are from old-fashioned
