Any old photo can be restored. This means pictures which have faded or discoloured over time can be restored to their original condition. Not only that, photos with tears, lost pieces, cracking, water damage or sun damage can also be restored. In fact, when it comes to old photo restorations, we can do virtually anything. To start the process the original photo is scanned into proprietary image editing software. From there the photo is manipulated to repair the damage and enhance the image. This will include filling in missing pieces, fixing the background or anything else the image requires. Sometimes photo restoration means we need to remove backgrounds and replace them with more crisp images. You can even put a completely new background. All this while keeping your original photo safe. To restore old photos, it is important to find a photo technician who is experienced as well as being a talented artisan. When you search for photo restoration near me, make sure you only entrust your photos to the Flashback Photo Co team who have a proven track record.
