A VPN protects you by acting as a virtual private network, basically making your internet traffic look like it's coming from another IP address. If you don't use a VPN when you download content, your download may be viewed and tracked by sites like KickassTorrents. Most popular torrent sites these days require their users to sign in with Facebook, and if you didn't already use a VPN, even that might not protect your torrenting. Thumpers right-click menu can be found in the tools and settings section of their site. You can find any sort of extensions you would like to download, or check out torrents. The menu will also guide you on which extensions you have already downloaded in the past. A download manager will make the downloading process much faster. Another cool feature is that you can view the torrents offered on your RSS feed that does not require you to be online. For users on public Wi-Fi networks, such as most coffee shops, airports, hotels and public hotspots, be very careful when downloading torrents and using Wi-Fi. Most of the time, these networks are insecure, and can be easily sniffed or even hacked. Once you're on a public network, make sure to use a VPN or a different browser to download your torrents. Many people use the web browser version of the torrent client to download torrents. While you can use the web browser interface to download torrents, downloading using your web browser puts your entire internet activity on display for all to see. SuperTorrents is another torrent site for new releases, and it's a wonderful site for finding new torrents when you're looking for a more reliable service. Like LimeTorrents, SuperTorrents has a good seeder/leecher ratio on new torrents and a simplistic user interface. A minor drawback is that SuperTorrents doesn't have a mobile site and as such you'll have to download the torrent client to use the site.

The site is also very active and will rarely stop uploading torrents. Other alternative sites could do well with their services. Paying a call center employee or receiving a phone call from a live person is way more effective than just a text message. In fact, if a torrent site is going to send you a text, it should at least have a deal with some of the site's seeders/leechers to have their pages added there so that anyone who is interested in that torrent can see what the site has to offer. Thus, it should send a text to sites that have shown an interest in your torrents. 5ec8ef588b
